

DENTISTS BRUSH IT BRIGHTER

Henry Moore goes to dentist. Dentist gets idea: I'll become a sculptor. Dentist has one man show, in north London. His style? Like his patient's, of course. Full of holes. But what of all those other art greats' orthodontists? PAUL THOMAS uncovers more masterpieces from the bridge and mouthwash school

Teeth from the Tate

In The Chair, by Munch's dentist

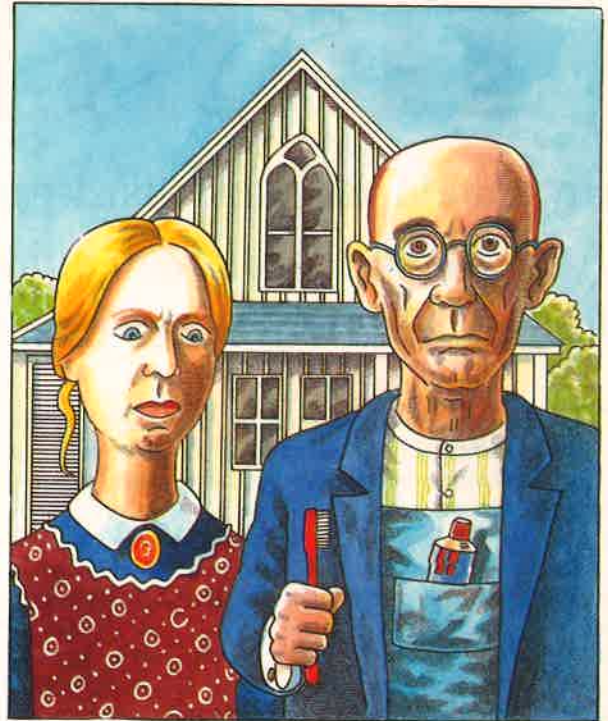

The Ultra-Brite Smile That Gets You Noticed, by Botticelli

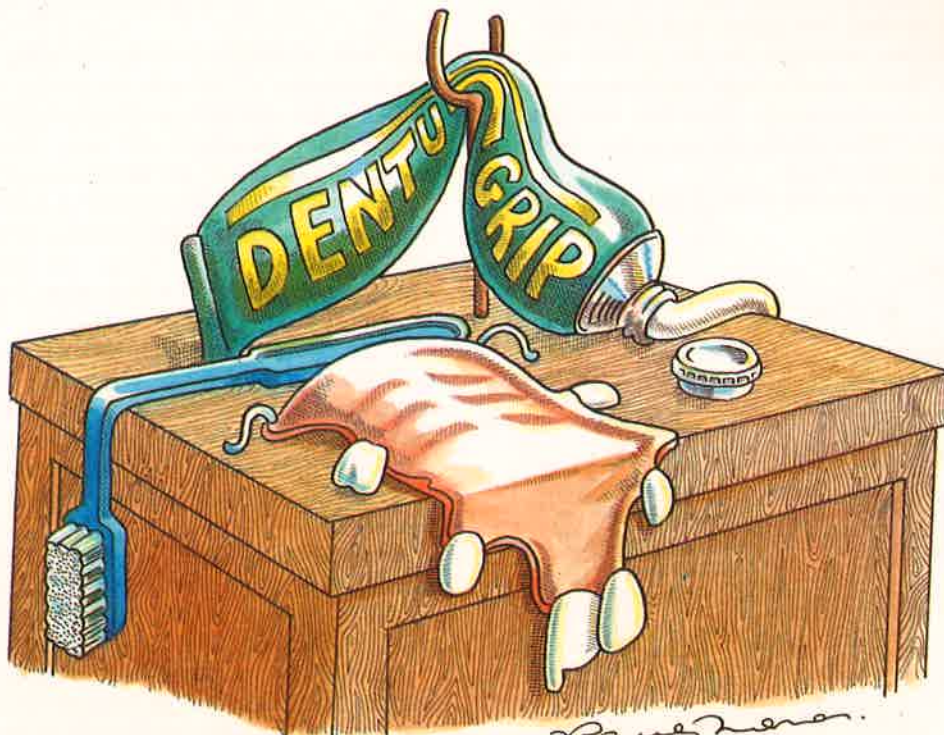

Signal, by Jackson Pollock's dentist

The Laughing Cavalier's Ring of Confidence

The Pennsylvania Toothbrush Massacre, by Grant Wood

Dentures, by Dali